[illegible] Returning Board.

[illegible] Orleans, Nov 24—The returning board met this morning Present Palmer [illegible] G. R. Smith and Julian for the [illegible] Boughton Hale, Van Allen White and McGrew for the Republicans. Gov. Wells stated he had received a communication from the supervisors of Nachitoches [illegible] stating the names of a number of electors [illegible] had been left off the tickets. The report [illegible] was read, in which it was [illegible] ward eleven the vote for the [illegible] was 542 Tilden electors 171 [illegible] it was thought necessary to count only [illegible] for the electors at large, and the electors [illegible] Congressional district [illegible] is asked whether the returns could [illegible] testimony [illegible] Wells answered that it was not the [illegible], but of the commission [illegible] inquired if the statement was in [illegible] when opened [illegible] said no [illegible] is asked if Democratic counsel [illegible] an opportunity to contradict [illegible] said it would, but the statement [illegible] contradicted by the ballots [illegible] would telegraph for them [illegible] an application on behalf [illegible] correspondents for admission [illegible] him to [illegible] sent on [illegible] from New [illegible] speaking in unmeasured terms the [illegible] the determination to [illegible] that the whole fraternity [illegible] for the action of one [illegible] Trumbull and Smith condemned this [illegible] the election of Ken[illegible] the vacancy in the board, but [illegible] said he had decided the clerical [illegible]. If there was a vacancy, Demo[illegible] would be considered [illegible] had not determined to appoint [illegible] petition of citizens and can[illegible] on the board Both [illegible] fixed Monday as the date for East Baton Rouge returns [illegible] will be considered to-[illegible] of Judge Spofford an officer [illegible] for the returns from [illegible] went into execu[illegible]

[illegible] Nov. [illegible]—The Times' New Or[illegible] says The Democrats now ad[illegible] opponents have a strong case in [illegible] parishes and there [illegible] they have given up all hope [illegible] the evidence of witnesses [illegible] to testify for the Repub[illegible] The country has heard a great deal [illegible] of outrages on colored [illegible] South, but nothing so terrible as [illegible] to be executed to the [illegible] yet been published [illegible] who were summoned [illegible] state that [illegible] given their evidence they will [illegible] to their homes, as they [illegible] be killed if they did so Be[illegible] of the Democrats in the [illegible] difficulty to get some of the [illegible] here. Some days [illegible] summoned these [illegible] to testify as to the [illegible] in their districts. They replied [illegible] dare to To-day a file of U S [illegible] to their homes to give them [illegible] in New Orleans

[illegible] Nov. 24—The Times' Washing[illegible] Senator West received a [illegible] from New Orleans which [illegible] indications thus far are favorable [illegible] Hayes, and that the situa[illegible] tory to the Republicans, who [illegible]

[illegible] Nov. 24—The Journal's New Or[illegible] says the Republicans have com[illegible] parishes, the vote [illegible] 28,424, Democrats 19,[illegible] majority 9,274 The Repub[illegible] probably have 64 and the Demo[illegible] House. The Senate will be [illegible]. A majority on joint [illegible] Republican.

[illegible] Des Moines special says Gen [illegible] from Louisiana, repre[illegible] intimidation by social ostracism is [illegible] in the South that it is astonishing any [illegible] cast. The colored [illegible], and if arms were obtain[illegible] would be the result

[illegible] New Orleans special [illegible] the next returning board will [illegible] in the contested parishes [illegible] only giving decisions [illegible]. Its deliberations can [illegible] the 6th, and there is some [illegible] all the business can be [illegible] by that time, only one parish hav[illegible]

[illegible] their Rights.

[illegible] Nov. 24—Representatives of [illegible] newspapers in the coun[illegible] here last night and adopted [illegible] to the returning [illegible] set forth that they can [illegible] to their papers the [illegible] so fraught with na[illegible] and interest, unless admitt[illegible] This was refused by [illegible] given.

The answer is made re[illegible] at 4 o'clock this afternoon

[illegible] National Committee to Wade Hampton

New York, Nov. 24—Tilden and Hendricks [illegible] for two hours to-day Hewitt [illegible] also [illegible]. To-night Hewitt pub[illegible] a letter to Wade Hampton as follows

National Democratic Committee, }
New York, Nov. 24 }

My Dear Sir Your admirable letter to the people of South Carolina is the subject of uni[illegible] commendation here. In fact the pru[illegible], [illegible] rance, and self control of its peo[illegible] under the most exasperating provocations is beyond all praise. I can only trust that the [illegible] situation in which you will find yourself next week no outbreak will occur. It [illegible] too much to expect that there will be [illegible] man in South Carolina who m[illegible] [illegible] collision, but nevertheless the pr[illegible] of God has so far guided you and your people in all your difficulties that your friends [illegible] in calm confidence upon the wisdom and good fortune which have so far attended your [illegible]. You may rest assured your Northern brethren have consecrated themselves to the work of your deliverance and will never cease their efforts until you are restored to that [illegible] when with you were free by labors and sacrifices and wisdom of our forefathers and your forefathers. God give you and your people all wisdom and all the patience needed [illegible] this hour of trial and in this crisis of des[illegible] of our common country We have full [illegible] in the justice of the people of the United [illegible], and we do not entertain a doubt of the [illegible] which they will pass upon the [illegible] of the last two weeks This ver[illegible]dict will surely vindicate their majesty and re-establish free government in a lasting basis I have the honor to be very respectfully your obedient servant

ABRAHAM S. HEWITT
Chairman National Democratic Committee

The Prudence of the Administration Commended

The Tribune's Washington special says now that the mystery thrown around the movement of troops has been abandoned every body except a few of the most partisan Democrats commends the prudence of the administration in assembling a force large enough to afford assurance that there will be no riotous outbreak at the next session of Congress which is sure to be unusually exciting

Extra Session of the New Congress

The Tribune's Washington special says an extra session of the new Congress is probable [illegible] it will be impossible to complete the regular business in view of the Presidential trouble [illegible]

The Tribune says editorially the repeal by the present House of the rule to prevent filibustering would enable the Republicans it is said by dilatory motions, to prevent the election of a President by the House until after the 4th of March Filibustering in the House of Representatives is vastly to be preferred to filibustering in the White House

Colfax on Eligibility.

Ex Vice President Colfax reviews the history of precedents, which is of interest and importance in its application to the question of eligibility now so much discussed It is well known that in the case of John Young Brown nominated for Congress when still under 25 years of age but elected with the understanding that he would not be sworn till he had passed the age required by the constitution the House was so closely balanced that the struggle over the speakership lasted two months It was not till several months had passed however, that Brown became of the required age and took the oath His seat was not contested although he was ineligible when elected and although the control of the House hinged upon one vote no objection was raised to his acting after his disability had been removed This disability to use Colfax's own words, was removed by time or the act of the President himself This precedent at last seems to fit the case of the Vermont and Oregon postmasters

More about the Kentucky Blunder.

The Times Cincinnati special says It turns out that no electors were voted for in Kentucky The vote was cast, and Tilden and Hendricks and Hayes and Wheeler were the only persons voted for The names of the electors were not printed and not one man in a thousand knew who they were.

Worse than Intimidation in North Carolina.

The Times Raleigh special says Dr A J Glover, Supervisor of election at Swan Quarter, Hyde county, North Carolina, was drowned on the night of Nov 6th, with the Republican tickets for that county in his possession He was accompanied by a party of Democrats who enticed him away from town to the vicinity of Old Wild Mill, on pretence of having important information to communicate He never returned alive, but was found some days after nearly upright in the water with his coat drawn over his head and other evidence of violence. He was invited by one of the parties to drink at his bar before leaving and it is believed the liquor was drugged The election tickets were never found.

P[illegible]

Sacramento, Nov 23—The official vote of Mono county was received at the Secretary of State's office to-day Hayes 153, Tilden 125 Pacheco 151, Wigginton 126 Kenfield 151 Brown 123 In the Secretary of State's office it is figured up that Pacheco's majority is one vote Merced returns, however, being unofficial

Gov Hayes at Toledo.

Toledo Nov 24—Gov Hayes made an unostentatious visit here to-day, chiefly among the State Institutions

Cabinet Meeting

Washington, Nov 24—There was a full cabinet meeting to-day lasting two hours for general consideration of affairs in Louisiana Florida and South Carolina, and questions growing out of the Presidential election received attention. The discussion of the statutes touching the points recently raised, and opinions of the Attorney General upon questions of the rights and duties of the courts in instances similar to those in South Carolina and Florida were referred to but no formal action taken by the government

Official Vote of Missouri.

St Louis Nov 24—The official votes of this State for President is as follows Tilden 202 687 Hayes 144 398 Cooper 3,498 Tilden's majority over Hayes 58 289 over Hayes and Cooper 54 791

Majority in next House in Doubt

The Tribune's Washington special says Best Republicans give the Democrats 149 and Republicans 141 in the next House Add two Republicans and one Democrat from New Hampshire, and the figures are 150 Democrats and 143 Republicans This gives nearly all doubtful districts to the Democrats The Republicans may have six more than the above count and may have three less The same authority thinks the Democratic majority may be entirely lost

Alex. Stephens Anticipates a Lively Time

Alexander Stephens has arrived He anticipates a most important session and will exert his influence to allay excitement, and for non partisan patriotic legislation

Tilden Studying the Election Laws.

Chicago Nov 24—The Tribune's Washington special says Tilden is represented as busy reading up constitutional questions on the election of President law books Congressional proceedings, etc and particularly studying the laws of the Southern States now in dispute and where ineligible electors have been found He is in constant consultation with prominent politicians and lawyers concerning possible contingencies affecting his chances This is believed to be the preparation of plans for Democratic Congressmen if Hayes electors receive certificates in Louisiana and Florida

Ben Butler's Opinion of the Action of the [illegible] Returning Board

The Inter Ocean's Washington correspondent interviewed General Butler to-day who expressed the opinion that the South Carolina returning board were compelled to act as they did under the law and Democrats simply fell into the pit they themselves dug In having the two intimidated counties to be acted upon by the legislature they did just right It was absurd to claim that the court could extend the time for sessions of the board

A Mystery in the Treasury Department

Some information of an unusual character was received at the Treasury Department from New Orleans to-day and caused a laying together of official heads Answering a question one prominent official said it was something which the public interest demanded to be kept secret

Gathering of Congress—The Speakership

The Appeal's correspondent says members of Congress are arriving and the beginning of lively times is apparent [illegible] and Randall are warmly contesting for the speakership with Morrison in the background

An American woman Mrs Susan [illegible] [illegible] with believing that it is the duty of every member of the human family to devote their bodies to [illegible] until the principles of physical [illegible] [illegible] to be dissected immediately after death She winds up her testimony with the following clumsy but cheerful permission I shall also wish that if any of my friends should desire to have a remnant of my said body they should be at liberty to do so

A Boston woman had prepared to elope but when her husband hearing of her intention came forward with his check book and offered her money for her expenses while his face was illuminated with unbounded joy she reconsidered the matter and concluded not to go It took all the romance away

San Francisco Nov 24—In the Edwards Keating case in the circuit court the jury were unable to agree and were discharged at 11 o'clock this morning They stood six to six Counsel for the defense moved the case be placed on the calendar for December but Justice Hoffman of the district court who has been trying the case intimated he had had enough of it and left the matter of a new trial for Justice Sawyer of the circuit court

The San Francisco Investigation.

The report that the financial committee of the board of supervisors intend to conduct their investigation of election frauds in secret session is discredited by parties interested who say there is no doubt the examination will be public The inquiry will include a complete analysis of the vote of the city In this connection it is stated that the increase over the average vote is distributed over all the precincts in the city with remarkable regularity showing apparently that any attempts at fraud or colonization if any have been made, were most judiciously managed The committee will not probably finish comparison of certificates and affidavits before Tuesday next after which testimony will be taken

Suicide of an Oregonian—A Facetious Letter to the Coroner.

San Francisco, Nov 24—Yesterday evening a fine appearing gentleman about [illegible] years of age, took a room at the coroner's house This afternoon he was discovered in bed dying and expired a few moments afterwards Letters were found in the bureau to two parties in this city and one to his brother in Portland, Oregon Also the following

San Francisco, Nov. 24.

E R Swan M D Coroner—Dear Sir In order to save you as much trouble as possible, I beg to inform you that this is a case of laudanum taken with suicidal intent Reasons concern no one but myself, still, if any one should insist upon having a reason, you can say I was driven to desperation by the Presidential muddle and seeing no prospect of ascertaining in this world who was to be next President went to the next where all things are supposed to be known Please exert your influence with the city fathers to prevent the erection of a monument over my remains but if you should find a widespread feeling on the part of the people to mark my last resting place you might let Mr Young speak to Mr Crocker and have it fenced in Respectfully, etc., W W. BANCROFT

The last clause in the letter refers to the recent imbroglio between Chas Crocker and Mr Young, of the undertaking firm of Massey & Young whose house was inclosed by Crocker in a high board fence, because the proprietor refused to sell to Crocker whose lot adjoined A letter from his brother in Portland, found in the room rendered it evident the suicide was prompted by straitened circumstances Other documents showed he was admitted to the Oregon bar in 1867 was clerk of the United States district court at Vancouver in 1862 and had been in the tobacco business on Front street Two empty bottles, which had contained laudanum were found in the room The body was removed to the morgue

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Won't Resign or be Dismissed

Victoria Nov 24—Water Works Commissioner Gibson of this city, having been requested to resign for failing to comply with the request of the mayor to attend council meeting a week ago and refusing to resign the council, at their last meeting, dismissed him by the casting vote of the mayor It is probable he will not recognize his dismissal, and the matter will go into court

WHAT RUSSIA WANTS

[From the Cincinnati Commercial ]

There is at the present time a great amount of loose reasoning in reference to the wants and claims of Russia in particular and the Eastern question in general Lack of trustworthy information in regard to the country of the Czar its resources population, Government and customs our own comparatively slight intercourse coupled with the fact that a greater part our information is viewed through English spectacles and prejudices, are sufficient excuse for this

There are many who believe Russia has hostile designs on England's power in India and the East others that she desires to establish the Greek church to the exclusion of the Jesuits in all Sclavonic countries and in Turkey While these might be more or less the remote effect of hostilities and a general war and even while they may now cut no inconsiderable figure in the knotty Eastern problem we are frank to confess that they do not compass or fathom Russia's purpose nor are either of them sufficient to justify Russia's taking up arms It must be borne in mind in the first place that Russia will not go to war for an idea as England did in the Crimean contest for which according to John Bright she paid 40 000 lives £100 000 000 and loaned to insolvents in the Bosphorus as much more and in the next place her financial condition is not such as would justify her in so doing Russia's annual deficit is larger than Austria's her finances are muddled and her statesmen lack the ability to straighten them. In 1871 the total interest bearing debt was £135 350 000, but in addition there are now upwards of 750 000, 000 roubles issued in paper bills of credit together with a large floating debt the amount of which is unknown Therefore lacking the needful funds which are the sinews of war any serious interference with England's India possessions may not be looked upon as alarming at present When it is considered that a conquest of India by Russia would involve long and tedious marches over lofty mountain ranges exposed to exhausting and enervating climates over poorly-watered and trackless wilds of sand for over two thousand miles away from any solid base of operations at Orenburg, some of the difficulties will be seen Then met by a large force at the Indus which could be transported from England via Suez better than Russia could reach there by land Then defeat would be annihilation, and victory might be stripped of any solid or abiding benefits.

1 Russia wants free and unrestricted access to the ocean, in order that her trade and industry may be developed As Alexander I expressed it she wants the keys to her own house Peter the Great thought he was amply repaid for his long and bloody contests with Charles XII, of Sweden, when he gained the Baltic provinces. Now the issue from the Baltic is blocked by the power that commands the Sounds and the Belts and departure from the Black Sea by the Turks at Constantinople These are Russia's two vital points, and hence her interest in affairs at Copenhagen and Constantinople.

2 Russia wants an adjustment of the Sclavonian question—that is the struggle of the Slave people of southeastern Europe for unification and freedom based on the principle of nationality The Sclaves number upwards of 40 000 000 professing the same faith speaking the same language. If we except about 1,000, 000 free Servians and 4 000 000 Roumanians of the principalities who are free we have the balance who are tyrannized over by the alien races Some are held under military sway in Austro-Hungary, while 13 000 000 in Roumelia are lorded over by Turkish barbarians Is it strange that Russia regards the condition of the Sclaves with feelings of more than ordinary interest" Bound by the ties of language religion and propinquity of territory, her opposition to the Turks and aid to the down trodden Christians means something more than the establishment of the Greek church to the exclusion of the Papal In May, 1867, M Bolit, Croatian agitator at a Pan-sclavonic meeting, honored by the presence of Count Tolstoy the minister of education, M. Pozzcholl the mayor of St Petersburg and other eminent persons, used the following language "The battle of Sadowa has decided the destinies of European east In consequence of it the German world has been separated from the Sclavonian, what remains to be done is to solve the Sclavonian question—a task to be done by the Sclavonians themselves—and chiefly by Russia. Russia gentlemen is no longer Russian it is Sclavonian nay Pan Sclavonian The resources at her disposal are material but also moral Sclavonic Russia is no menace to civilization but only prepares Europe for witnessing the reunions of the Sclavonian family " If this means anything, it is that since Austria is no longer under the protection of Germany there is nothing to hinder the Sclavonians from utilizing her for the Pan-Sclavonic purposes under Russian auspices This then is what Roumelia means when she declares for independence and, in the light of the above the demands of the Czar are something more than for a mere extent of territory or the embroiling of humanity in a contest over a cross or a crescent, a St Sophia or a Mahomet "

HOW ASIATIC MOSLEMS, REGARD THE WAR

If the Mohammedans of India seem to regard the Servian war and the present precarious condition of the Turkish Empire with considerable indifference the same charge can not be brought against their brethren of Arabia We recently published a few items of news received by a late mail from Jeddah and among them an account of a meeting held by the metowafs or pilgrim guides at Mecca, at which an important step was taken with the avowed intention of marking the displeasure which the community felt at certain acts done by the English consul at Jeddah Now we hear that the magnates of Mecca have again met together but this time with the view to consider the present position of the war in Turkey and the result as in the former case has been of an eminently practical nature It was decided unanimously that in the existing state of affairs the whole of the Mohammedan world was bound to come forward and assist either in purse or person the struggling empire. Already the people of Jeddah and Mecca have responded to the call made on them and at the time of the departure of the last mail a sum of $5 000 had made its way into the hands of the treasurer at Mecca for remittance to Constantinople The formal declaration thus made and acknowledged in Mecca calling on Mohammedans throughout the world to contribute to the support of the Turkish Empire as a religious duty is an event of no slight importance Had the appeal issued from the Sultan it might have carried even more weight with it but coming as it does from Mecca it goes abroad with the sanction and approbation of all the recognized heads of the [illegible] sects and moreover it cannot have been issued without at least the passive consent of the Sultan —Bombay Gazette

A Dubuque girl played copenhagen at a party the other night and yelled and shrieked and howled and ran behind the door and scratched the young man's face in seven places and upset a kerosene lamp and kicked over the piano stool and screamed for the police and [illegible] when he kissed her just on the tip of the ear she fainted dead away and said she could never look any one in the face again and then led the bashful modest [illegible] sobbing home The next day she ran away with a married lightning rod peddler with a bad leg and six children

The Hillsboro Independent says "The late rains have raised the streams and swales to an unusual height at this time of the year all over the country. Several culverts and low bridges have been carried away or are afloat. The Tualatin, however, is only just barely out of its banks at this point "

A letter from Yamhill county to the Farmer says In this county prospects are good for fall wheat Owing to early rains some did not get sowed all they desired, but perhaps the acreage is larger than ever before. The tendency toward fall sowing is increasing. Early sowing is coming more in favor also A few more lessons like we have learned the past two years will bring it more in favor Oats are also sown in the fall quite extensively

The Gazette says "On Friday, Mr. W. N Eggleston, one of the manipulators of the Emerick steam wood saw, in Corvallis met with a very painful accident, which will doubtless mar his personal beauty Mr Joseph Emerick was feeding the saw at the time, and Mr Eggleston, who had been absent for a short time, coming up behind him, had the misfortune to be struck with a stick of wood, a sliver from which passed entirely through his nose, and could not be extracted without being cut out, which operation was skillfully performed by Dr J R. Bayley "

New TACOMA INVESTIGATION.

New Tacoma, W T, Nov 24, 1876.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Business, which has been in a state of slumber here for nearly three years is waking up from its long nap and beginning to show signs of activity The North Pacific Railroad Co have commenced work in earnest on the twenty five mile extension to their coal fields surveying parties are out making the final location, Gen Sprague is actively engaged in pushing forward the work, letting contracts for grubbing and clearing for cross ties, piles and timber, and work on the grade will commence as soon as the weather will permit

Skookum Smith is erecting a sawmill here, to furnish the railroad company, and also to supply the local trade, which will be very considerable during the coming [illegible] on Hotels are filling up, and we see the familiar faces of J L Hallett, O H Kimball Geo D Shannon and other railroad contractors among us.

Our jolly friend J S Walker, Wells, Fargo's agent at this place, has fitted up an office on the wharf in very elaborate style and is prepared to do the express business promptly, and he will also take acknowledgments of deeds There are two stores here on the wharf, both of which are apparently doing a prosperous business On the hill there is an inquiry for buildings to rent for business purposes and a new hotel is to be opened soon

The hop business of the [illegible] valley is about closed for the present season Over 1 000 bales have already been shipped to San Francisco this season and there are a few hundred more awaiting shipment.

The very heavy rains of last Friday night caused some land slides near here doing some damage to the railroad and delaying the trains from Saturday morning until Monday

A huge slide started Saturday morning about 8 o'clock from the bank just below the Railroad Hotel Immediately in front was a large China wash house occupied by six or eight Celestials In less time than it takes to write this the building was totally demolished and in place of it an indescribable mass of broken boards mud shirts shingles bushes, underclothing more mud and Chinamen It being high tide the whole mass landed in the waters of the bay The Johns one after another came to the surface digging their way through the rubbish and struck out lively for terra firma Strange to say they all escaped with a few scratches It is safe to say every bachelor in Tacoma is wearing a very dirty shirt this week and some of us may have to go a week or two longer before our finances will permit us to replenish our wardrobes

TACOMA

From the time the first log was cut for the first house, says the Black Hills Pioneer, the growth of Deadwood has been almost marvelous Only five months ago the town site was a perfect wilderness of pine trees To-day our city contains over 3 000 people stretching along Deadwood and Whitewood for more than a mile We have nearly 200 business houses a municipal government a mayor board of aldermen police and all other officers necessary for the administration of justice

"I want you to play something brilliant and dashing," said young Mr Romeo to the organist arranging for the music at his wedding "none of those old die away worn out things usually played How would Beethoven's Symphony in E minor arranged as a fantasia in four flats and one stop to the high C suit you" inquired the musician "Well," said the bridegroom elect evidently puzzled, "if it's got the ring and go of the Skidmore Guards' or 'Tommy Make Room for Your Auntie in it, I think it'll do "

CAN THE CONSTITUTION BE LEGALLY DISREGARDED?

Portland Nov 24, 1876

To the Editor of the Oregonian

I read your article in this morning's issue on "The Powers of the Governor and Secretary of State in Counting the Electoral Vote" and so handsomely had you put it that upon finishing the perusal thereof I was almost convinced even against my better judgment, that you were right, and that it was indeed the duty of those officers to plainly break the law by obeying the law, or in other words, that those officers should proceed legally to disregard a plain constitutional prohibition But yet I want to ask one or two questions, which I hope you will answer

First—If Dr Watts was postmaster on the day of election, is he not plainly prohibited, by the constitution, from holding the office of elector?

Second—Are not the governor and secretary of State sworn to obey the constitution of the United States?

Third—With the facts of the case as to his being postmaster before them, would they not show an utter disregard of this constitutional provision, instead of an obedience thereto, in case they granted him a certificate of election?

Fourth—Do you hold that an officer of the government, in the discharge of his duty, is bound, by a technical construction of any statute law, to knowingly, wilfully and deliberately disregard a plain constitutional prohibition, that he cannot legally of his own volition obey his oath to support the constitution, and that there is no power to prevent him from breaking his oath of office and disregarding the great fundamental law of the land but the direct and [illegible] injunction of the courts?

Fifth—Is it not conformable to sound principles of law as well as to plain rules of [illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] statute law quoted by you relative to the duty of the State canvassers should be so construed, that their action should be in obedience to the constitution, and not a tacit acquiescence in the violation thereof?

By expressing frankly your views upon the above points you will doubtless favor [illegible] besides

SATURDAY MORNING, NOV. 25, 1876.

WHO IS TO EXERCISE JUDICIAL POWERS?

The questions propounded by "A Hard Shell," whose letter we publish this morning, so far as they touch the subject which we endeavored to present in the article he refers to, may all be put into one and answered in a few words. Our opinion as to whether Dr. Watts is disqualified to act as an elector by the fact—if it is a fact—of his having been at the time of his election a postmaster, is immaterial to the discussion of the question of who is to decide upon his qualifications. We leave that question therefore to the decision of those upon whom the duty of deciding is devolved by the laws of the State. Our proposition was and is, that neither the Governor nor the Secretary of State, nor both of them together, have any power to inquire into the qualification of an elector. Their duties are purely ministerial and in no sense judicial. They are directed by the statute to count the votes returned to them and declare the result. "A Hard Shell" admits this is the case, if the statutes of the State alone are to be followed. But he insists that since the Constitution of the United States prescribes the qualifications, or rather, prescribes a disqualification, the Governor and Secretary of State must see to it that no person having that disqualification receive a certificate of election. Not to do this, says he, would be to obey the statute by disobeying the Constitution, and since the Constitution is first and highest, if either that or the statute of the State must yield, the Constitution must be obeyed and the statute disregarded. That is specious, but fallacious. How can the Governor and Secretary, or either of them, determine whether Watts is a postmaster or not? It is a question of fact, and its determination is a judicial act, the result of a judicial investigation, upon evidence produced as in court. But these officers have no judicial powers. They have no powers except such as they derive from the constitution and laws of Oregon. The constitution of Oregon declares that the judicial power in this State is vested in the courts. The power to try and determine the question whether Watts is or was a postmaster, being a judicial power, is therefore vested by our constitution in the courts and not in the executive. Until that question has been determined judicially, the statement that he is or was such, is no more than an idle rumor of which the Governor and Secretary can not lawfully take notice; and it would not become anything else but a [illegible], though it were drawn out into a [illegible] and laid before the executive officers. The investigation, the taking of evidence, the deciding of the question of fact, would still be required; and that is the judicial part of the case, which these two officers are prohibited by the constitution of the State from performing. It must be done by the courts, whose decision would bind the executive or administrative officers, whether in favor of or against the claim of Dr. Watts.

Furthermore, the Constitution of the United States expressly leaves the appointment of electors to the several States, with only this limitation, that it shall be done in such manner as the legislatures of the States respectively may provide. If the legislature of Oregon should provide that the electors for President should be appointed by the Governor, or by the Chief Justice, or by the legislature itself or by the Chief of Police of Portland, such provision would not be subject to objection on account of its violating the national Constitution. It will be seen at once that the power to provide the manner of appointing electors implies the power to provide the manner in which it shall determine who has been legally appointed. That being left to the States, the legislature of Oregon has provided just what the Governor and Secretary shall do, which does not include this judicial power, and the Constitution of the State, from which the legislature and the Governor and Secretary derive all their powers, declares this particular power shall not be exercised by any department but the judicial.

The insuperable obstacle to the exercise by the Governor and Secretary of the power to reject Dr. Watts as an elector, lies not so much in the legal question whether a postmaster, by resigning after election, can remove his disqualification, as in the antecedent question whether in fact he is or was a postmaster at all. That is the question which precedes the other, and that precedent question is the one which calls for judicial determination—a determination which the Governor and Secretary are prohibited by the constitution and laws of Oregon from making.

THE SHADOW OF THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

The people of the whole Union are waiting a final decision of the Presidential contest, with an anxiety that is absorbing all other questions. The forebodings and alarm are shared alike by thoughtful and conservative men of both parties. The business of the country has been visibly affected by the long-continued uncertainty; nor will the depression cease until the result is finally reached.

For months past, when complaints of "hard times" have been made over the country, the hopeful reply has been made "that business will revive as soon as the election is over," and has been accepted as satisfactory. Many days have already elapsed since the election, and yet the promised improvement and elasticity have not appeared. On the contrary, the depression and vague anxiety have only been deepened. The situation is suggestive of anything but cheerfulness and faith in our present system of selecting a Chief Magistrate. There is probably no danger of any serious outbreak on account of irregularities which have already occurred or are likely to take place in connection with this election. The American people have, on more than one occasion, demonstrated their possession of that rarest of all types of courage, which enables them patiently and coolly to wait and endure suspense without plunging into anarchy. Whatever may be the faults or heresies of either of the great political parties, the best and truest interests of the nation would be conserved by the settlement of the question by the selection of either of the candidates. That business stagnation and general depression invariably precede our Presidential elections, is a pregnant fact. It indicates a wide-spread, although vague and perhaps unconscious, fear on the part of the citizens of the Union, that the upheaval of society consequent upon the agitation and excitement attending a national election, may not always quietly subside. Nor will it do to say that this depression is occasioned by the mere neglect of business caused by the interest taken by the masses in such elections. The cause is much more deeply seated. It lies in the fear of what may, and at any juncture like the present, is liable to, happen. We confidently believe the nation will pass safely through the present ordeal, and in a manner which will be highly complimentary to the patriotism and good sense of the people. Nevertheless it is the duty of our statesmen to heed the prophetic warning sounded by Senator Morton, which has already met such literal fulfillment, and Congress can not do better in the early days of the coming session, than to give the subject the prudent consideration which its importance demands.

THE TWO CANDIDATES.

Public attention was drawn throughout the campaign to the great difference of demeanor in the two candidates for the Presidency, and is still more attracted to the subject by the way in which they have conducted themselves since election day. While the contest was raging Mr. Hayes remained at home, attending as usual to his duties as Executive of the State of Ohio, maintaining throughout the campaign the calm, dignified, and statesmanlike deportment which distinguishes a great man from a mere politician and wire-worker. On the contrary, Tilden has been generally considered as his own most active, shrewdest and most intriguing supporter; so much so as to expose himself to the charge of being unduly excited and almost indecently anxious about the result. Since the election Gov. Tilden has been constantly represented as joining in the boastings of his followers that he had been victorious, and, when serenaded, assured the crowd that he knew he was elected, when it was a human impossibility for him to know anything of the kind. Gov. Hayes has been very reticent about claiming a victory, and rather expressed disapprobation at the idea of exulting over it before it was settled beyond all doubt that it had been achieved. Such are the two men; the one a sharp, shrewd political leader, who knows just how to pull the wires and lay the plans to achieve the object of his personal ambition; the other a clear-headed, dignified, deep-thinking statesman, commanding the respect of even his political foes by his general deportment in an hour calculated to move one possessed of the greatest self-command to expressions of chagrin at defeat, or exultation at victory. And whether successful or beaten, Gov. Hayes comes out of the contest with a brighter character and a deeper hold on the confidence of the people in his integrity than any man who ever went through the ordeal before.

The angel in whose book "Ben Adhems' name led, all the rest" doubtless took note of an expression made on a street in this city yesterday by a poor widow woman who had often been the recipient of charity at the hands of a lady, of whose sudden death the poverty-stricken one had just heard. The sad news drew her from her hovel toward the house of mourning, and as she passed along the street, the tears running down her cheeks, and apparently unconscious of the presence of others, she would ever and anon give fresh vent to her feelings and exclaim, "Mrs. —— is dead, and what shall I do?" No monument of marble or enduring brass can wealth build over the grave that will speak so eloquently of good deeds done as this touching tribute from one who felt that a charitable heart had ceased to beat, and one charitable hand would never more be outstretched to relieve her wants.

We remarked the other day—before the vote of Edgefield county had been cast out by the South Carolina returning board—that no county had been thrown out. The Mercury cites the fact that the board had corrected discrepancies in the returns from some counties in a manner to give the Republicans an advantage, to convict us of untruth, adding that the OREGONIAN had said in the face of these facts that "no vote" had been thrown out. Democratic prejudice and perversity may so blind the editor that he can not perceive the difference between saying no county had been thrown out and saying no vote had. If we assume that such is the case, and that the editor of the Mercury is unable to perceive that a single vote is not the same thing as all the votes of a county, we can then logically conclude he did not intentionally tell an untruth.

And now cometh Senator Kelly in his own proper person, at least such is the announcement of the telegraph, and putteth in an appearance at the Democratic "stiffening," and proposeth to contribute his might—with a gh—toward the erection of the gubernatorial spinal column to a perpendicular position, in anticipation of a day to come when it will be expected by the unterrified that His Excellency will stand erect on the canvass-the-vote question. By what mechanical process this elevation is to be effected, none but the scientific can tell. To those who are acquainted with the normal condition of the aforesaid spinal column, it seems impossible that the task should be successfully accomplished; but the Bourbons insist that the thing is practicable. Without venturing an opinion, we shall wait and see.

The governor's organ is still trying to work up the Democrats to the point of sustaining him in trampling the constitution under his feet and refusing to issue a certificate of election to Dr. Watts.

BRIEF NOTES.

The hat trade is better

No county court until the 4th prox

Eastern mails arrive now quite regularly

Meeting of Sportsmen's Club this evening

Next Monday one week— firemen's election

Steamer due here this evening from San Francisco

Lopping off the branches of the shade trees is now in order

Since the 7th day of November a good many boots have been slept in

Rev Dr A L Lindsley and wife are passengers on the incoming steamer

The Catholic Fair will open at Oro Fino Theater next Monday evening

One principal difficulty is that nobody knows how to buy Salt river tickets

Election returns long deferred makes the heart of the patriotic voter grow sick

Plenty of amusements next week—for concert hall and two theatrical companies

How many hopes and fears are centered in the ballot box—and also in the pool box

Democratic and Republican roosters are still on the fence. Both have a chance to crow

Show windows will soon be embellished with an endless display of Christmas goods

Gray hairs are said to be fashionable. This will be cheering news to spinsters and bachelors

The election bets are still pending, and the great question is "Will you ever shoot that hat?"

It isn't New Year yet but the friends of R B H and S J T are wishing them many happy returns

"Put that on the slate George till the pool box is opened," is a remark often heard in saloons now a days

Suppose the price of a shave should come down to five cents wouldn't it be rough on the smooth faced fellows?

We understand that the machinery is being taken out of the unfortunate steamer Daisy Ainsworth preparatory to tearing off the upper works

Exclaims an exchange "Show me a postmaster who is not shaking in his boots to day and I will show you a man who is regardless of the future"

There is no sense in a young but unsophisticated man paying a preacher $50 for marrying him and then setting up housekeeping on a hatrack, three cups and saucers and a gridiron

There's a hole in his hat, and torn is the brim, but what cares he for that it vexeth not him, and he says with a smile, "My bet it will win and I'll have a new tile when the votes are all in"

The sailors on board the bark Friedeburg got on a tear the other night, and made things very lively for a time. Officers Kelly and Burke swooped down on them and captured the whole squad.

When a man practices on a brass horn four years, causes three persons to commit suicide, drives seven others to the lunatic asylum, and who when he learns to blow properly, only gets 75 cents a day therefor, ought to be killed by way of an example

DISSOLUTION OF COPARTNERSHIP.

The copartnership existing between Joe Oppenheimer and Henry Ackerman, better known as Ackerman's Dollar Store will be dissolved January 1 1877. It is imperatively necessary that our stock be disposed of before that time. It being a very large and complete one comprising in the main elegant Holiday Presents, Crockery, Glass and Fine Plated Ware, it will be readily seen that great sacrifices must be made to dispose of it all within the time set.

The attention of the public and especially of dealers throughout the State is called to the above.

THE BONANZA AGAIN.

PORTLAND Nov 24, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Ochocoian puts it rather strong when he asks me to tell what chemical action will disintegrate quartz and leave silver in a metallic state "I don't know whether there is or is not any agent known to chemical science that will do it. Do not assume to know any more about the modus operandi of the chemical action" than he does about the exact locality of the subterranean creek. NATURE is her own chemist in her own laboratory. Her ways are sometimes past finding out and when a discovery is made that is a little outside of the ordinary observation of her laws it looks a little extravagant to at once call upon glaciers and subterranean creeks to account for it.

The simple facts are that wells or creeks of a pulpy substance are discovered to contain when the gross parts are taken away a residuum of metal, which when viewed under a microscope are found to be silver both in its natural state and the "oxide" also gold. According to Jas H Fisk's public statement, the same assayed in one instance $9,400 per ton, and I see no reason to doubt that the "stuff" was elaborated by nature just at or near by where it is found, and that further explorations will find more of it and richer.

About the experiment of mixing a few ounces of pulverized silver with mud I will say that if there is not too much mud the "prospect" will pan out big. I do not question "Ochocoian's" knowledge of a gravel bed seven to nine feet from the surface, (although I have been told that a pole fifteen feet long stuck down in a well failed to touch bottom) because a good hard gravel bed underlying the springs is a splendid place to catch the "big pieces" Yours, PORTLANDER.

An immense invoice of overcoats and ulsters will arrive per steamer Elder for Kohn's clothing palace

The bosom of dawn is brightest
The dew is sown
And the flower is blown
Where art thou my dear delightest.

Hark I have risen before thee
That the spell of day be o'er thee—
That the flush of my love
May fall from above,
And mixed with the morn adore thee

Dark dreams must now forsake thee
And the bliss of thy being take thee
Let the beauty of morn
In thine eyes be born
And the thought of me awake thee

Come forth to hear thy praises
While the wakening world upraises
Let thy hair be spun
With the gold of the sun
And thy feet kissed by the daisies
—Bayard Taylor

UNDER THE SEA

BY SUSAN COOLIDGE

They were scrambling down the rocks—a gay, chattering procession—pretty Kate with her captain, Dr Gray supporting his invalid wife; Helen, Isabel Tom and their midshipman cousin, last of all Esther Vane—alone It seemed to her morbid fancy right that it should be so Henceforth she must be alone—always

The little guide trotted on in advance—his round, ten year old face wearing the vacant stare so strangely common to that part of the Maine coast, with its glorious scenery. There the ocean is considered simply a vast depot of herrings and "porgy-oil," and the mountains as untoward obstacles in the way of a primitive husbandry "Blast 'em, I wish they was flat," the natives say, as their plows encounter the bowlders at the base, and, if they look aloft at all, it is to calculate the perches of "medder land" which might be made to occupy the same area if the hights were out of the way

Our party left on the eve of great things Having arrived only the day before, Mount Newport with its wonderful reach of sapphire sea, the bluffs, the lakes in their settings of dark-blue hill were still to them the images of things not seen This, their first excursion, they had dedicated to the "Grotto," or "Devil's Oven," as the coast people term it a sort of submarine cave, unveiled and accessible at low tide only, and a great wonder in its way The path grew steeper Carefully they followed its windings, step by step, sure-footed Kate accepting the help she didn't need, for that pleasure in being guided and watched And, now the little guide pauses, and, with a freckled fore finger points round a projection, of rock. All crowd to the spot Ah! there it is—the cave of the mermaids!

A shriek of mingled surprise and enchantment burst from every party in sight. Beneath the low-browed arch the rocky floor rose, terrace after terrace, till in its highest recess it met the roof above. A floor for the nereids to dance upon, a floor of pink carolina, gleaming here and there through pools of emerald water left by the receding tide. And each of these tiny [illegible] seemed brimming with flowers the flowers of ocean green whorls, like chestnut-burs, anemones with their [illegible]; brown and rosy mosses, among which [illegible] bright fish darted and played [illegible] of vivid orange-colored clustered, broad leaves of brilliant dye swaying and undulating with the mo[illegible] line; earthly garden was never so gorgeous. The rocky shelves were dimpled with hollows softly, exquisitely curved. No fancy of the old [illegible] days seemed too fantastic or too fair for the spot. The imagination instinctively kindled into pictures, and saw the sea-nymphs sporting in the foam, bold tritons winding their shells, mermaids playing hide-and-seek, nixies and mocking water-sprites peeping from the basins—all dream-land and wonder-land opening, and the common earth put aside and far away.

With cries of delight the party made their way down and scattered through the cave. There was room for an army [illegible] hard to realize that with the returning tide the space must fill, the gate[illegible], and leave no resting place for human foot.

"You said the tide was going down, didn't you, little boy?"

"Ye-ah"

"You're sure?"

"Ye-ah"

"That's nice," cried Isabel "Then we can stay as long as we like. Oh, do, somebody, come here and see this"

She was lying with her face almost touching the anemones. No one responded to her call each had found some other point of interest. Tom had fished up a sea-urchin, and was exhibiting it. Kate and the captain, in a niche of their own, at safe whispering distance, were absorbed in each other. Esther had climbed to the topmost ledge, and was sitting there alone For the first time in six weary months, a sensation of pleasure had come to her, and she was confident of but one longing—that they would all go away and leave her to realize it With some vague hope she got out her color-box and portfolio, and began to sketch. Sketching, she had discovered, kept people off, and furnished an excuse for silence And so an hour or so passed by She heard, as in a dream, the chatter of the others, their questions to the little guide, his short, jerky replies The pools were all explored, the urchins and anemones had been tickled with parasols, and made to shut and open and shut again, the young people began to sigh for future worlds to conquer, and Mrs Gray to consider it very damp

"Little boy, isn't there something else near by which we should like to see?"

"Guess so"

"Well, what is it? Tell us, please"

"There's the 'Heads,' I guess"

"Oh! how far off is that? A mile, did you say? That's not far Papa, the boy says there's a place called the 'Heads' only a mile away, and we want to go and see it Can't we go? You know the way, don't you, little boy?"

"Ye-ah"

"I think this place is very damp," sighed Mrs Gray "I should be really glad to go somewhere and feel the sunshine again I begin to have creeping chills. I suppose we let the boy show us the way to this other place, father"

"Very well Get your things together girls. Come, Esther, we're going"

Esther roused herself as from a dream "O, Mr. Gray Must I go? I'm in the middle of a sketch, you see Couldn't you leave me here quietly and pick me up as you come back? I should like it so much"

"Well, I don't know The tide is going out, the boy says there won't be any trouble of that kind Are you sure you won't be chilled, or lonely?"

"Oh! quite sure"

"Promise me that, if you are, you will go to the cottage at the bend and warm yourself, or sit on the rocks in the sun We'll look for you in one place or the other Good by, my dear"

"Good by, sir"

"And, O Esther, you must have some lunch You'll be starved before we come back," cried careful Helen

So she and Tom and a basket made their way upward, and a deposit of sandwiches and port wine was left in a convenient crevice within reach

"Good by, dear. I hope the sketch will be lovely." And they are gone—up the hillside—Mrs Gray last, leaning upon her husband's arm

"Poor child" she said, "it makes my heart ache to see her look so sad Didn't you notice how she was longing to have us go and leave her alone?"

"And the very worst thing for her She needs rousing and all this morbid thinking does her harm

The voice died away Esther caught the words and she smiled at them—a bitter little smile That was what all of them had said since her trouble came She must be roused—amused—and they had crowded business and pleasures upon her until she sometimes felt she could bear it no longer This was the first time in many weeks that she had felt really free—free to be silent, to look sad, to cry if she wished What a luxury it was No anxious eyes to watch her—faces comparative strangers withal—nothing [illegible] darkling silence—it was delicious! There was something in the very nature of her trial which made it necessary to veil her grief with reserve All black dress she might wear—Paul was a cousin and some show of mourning is allowed her second cousin and even and intimate friendship such as theirs had been But no one knew of the unavowed engagement which bound them since that hurried farewell after in which his love found utterance, and which only reached her after he sailed—the sailing from which there was to be no return No one knew as they talked compassionately of her having had a dreadful shock, poor girl her own cousin you know and such a fine young fellow—that her heart was wearing widow's weeds, and mourning its dead as the great loss of life It wouldn't bear talking about so she kept silence and tried to wear a brave face

Left alone she found with some surprise that she didn't want to cry All the morning she had felt that to creep away somewhere and weep and weep her heart out would be so good but tears are contrary things She sat there, dulled into a calm that was almost content She was thinking of the time when Paul had visited the island, and climbed about that very cave. On the very rock shelf where she sat, he might perhaps have rested She liked to think so It brought him nearer

A little later, she put her sketch away and crept down to a broad ledge where, through the arch, the exquisite sky-line was visible The surf tumbled and chimed like distant bells She lay as if fascinated, her eyes fixed upon the shining horizon Somewhere far beyond it was the spot where the good ship which held her all went down Down where? Her imagination ran riot Cleaving the liquid depths to the inmost sanctuary of ocean, she saw the golden sands, the shadowy green light percolating through miles of water—the everlasting repose which reigned there beyond the reach of storm wind or hurricane She tried to fix the wandering images, and to think of it as a haven no less tranquil than the quiet mounds under which are pillowed beloved heads on earth. But it would not stay. Thoughts of tempest and fury, of chill piping winds whipping the foam from the waves, of roar and tumult, and a heaving wilderness of dark waters, came over her; and through all the refrain of Jean Ingelow's pathetic strain mixed and blended

"And I shall see thee no more
Till the sea gives up the dead,"

Great drops forced themselves beneath the closed eyelids, and she sobbed "O Paul, Paul! how can I bear it?"

And then she thought, as she had thought before, how glad she should be to die! Life didn't seem desirable any longer, and it would be blessed to be with Paul, even at the bottom of the ocean And thinking thus the long eyelashes drooped more heavily, peace fell upon the brow and lips, she was asleep—asleep and dreaming a sweet, joyful dream How long she slept she never knew She awoke with a sensation of intense cold The spell of slumber was so strong upon her that for a moment she did not realize what had taken place The cave was half full of water Her feet and the hem of her dress were already wet, and the roar of the waves beneath the hardly distinguishable archway, told that the tide had surprised another victim, and already the avenue of escape was barred

Was this the answer to some unspoken prayer?

The thought flashed over her Had she really prayed for death? Here it was, close at hand, and she was conscious of no gladness only an instinctive desire for life It was too dreadful to be drowned in that hole and washed away like a weed Life was worth living after all

Had somebody said, or was she dreaming that a portion of the cave was left uncovered by the water? She could not remember, but now she searched about for some indication Ah, surely this was one—a cork, a scrap of paper, lodged on the higher shelf, fragile things which the tide must inevitably have washed away With that instinct of property which survives shipwreck and fire she collected her drawing materials and other little belongings, and retreating with them to this possible place of refuge, wrapped her cloak about her, and, with folded hands sat down to await her fate

The cave was full of green light It was beautiful to see, as the advancing flow rose, ledge over ledge, and flooded the fairy pools, how each star flower and sea urchin, each crimson and golden weed trembled and quivered as with delight at its refreshing touch Each anemone threw wide its petals and expanded into full blossom to meet the spray baptism No mortal eye ever looked upon sight more charming, but its beauty was lost to the shivering and terrified girl

The doorway had quite disappeared sharp spray dashed against her dress The drops struck her face She shrank and clung more tightly to the rock A prayer rose to her lips, and through the tremulous light of the submerged archway a strange shadow began to go and come, to move and pause and move again Was it fish or weed, or some mysterious presence? Did it come accompanied by life or death?

Meantime, on the rocks above, a distracted group were collected The party had come early back from the Heads Dr Gray, ignorant landsman as he was, had grown uneasy and hurried them away Arrived at the 'Grotto, the full extent of the calamity was at once evident The boy had mistaken the tide—flow for ebb—and the only hope was that Esther discovering her danger in time had taken refuge at the cottage near by Thither they flew but as we know in vain

The sobbing girls hung distractedly over the cliff listening to the hollow boom with which the waves swung into the cavern beneath—sickening to think of the awful something which might any moment wash outward on the returning billow The gentlemen went for assistance, and brought a couple of stout fishermen to the spot But what could anybody do?

"If the young woman has sense enough to climb up to the right hand corner and set still it won't hurt her none, perhaps" one of them said "Not more than one or two tides a year gets up there"

Ah! if Esther could only be told that They could but trust powerlessly to her steadiness of nerve and common sense

"She's such a wise thing" Helen sobbed out So they waited

A rattle of wheels came from the road They all turned to look and some one said 'Perhaps it's a doctor!" Though what earthly use a doctor could have been would be hard to say

A figure was rapidly coming up the path—a young man Nobody recognized him till Dr Gray started forward with the face of one who sees a ghost

"Paul! Good God! Is it possible!"

"Yes, doctor," with a hasty hand-shake. "No other I don't wonder you stare"

"But, in Heaven's name, how has it come about? Where have you been since we gave you up for lost"

"It's a long story You shall hear it some day But—rapidly—forgive my impatience—where is my cousin? What is the matter"

There was a dead silence At last with a groan, Dr Gray spoke

"Paul my dear fellow how can I tell you! Esther is below there"

"In the grotto"

"In the grotto Can anything be done"

The young man staggered The glow faded from his face leaving him deadly pale For a moment he stood irresolute then he roused himself and his voice though husky was firm

"It's a frightful place still there is no absolute danger if she keeps her presence of mind I stayed there [illegible] myself [illegible] to see [illegible] fishermen"

"Yes sir"

"Fetch it and then as quickly as [illegible]" Then to Dr Gray "I shall swim out there opposite the entrance and make a dive for it [illegible] to Esther till the water falls and we can get her out"

"But—the risk"

"There is the risk of striking the arch as I rise that all. I'm a good swimmer doctor as you know I think it can be done You can guess [illegible] how I have been counting on this meeting and to leave her alone and frightened and not to go to her, is simply impossible I shall manage it—never fear"

The boat came They saw it rowed out—Paul taking the bearings carefully shifting positions once and yet again before satisfied Then he looked up with bright confident eyes and a nod and clasped his hands over his head A splash—he was gone, and the water closed over him

Within the cave Esther watched the strange, moving phantom which darkened the entrance The splash reached without startling her, but in another second a flashing object whirled down and inward and rising, the waves revealed a face—a white face with wet hair In the pale, unearthly glow, it wore the aspect of death It drew nearer she covered her face with her hands Was the sea giving up its dead that here, in this fearful solitude, the vision of her drowned Paul confronted her—or was she going mad?

Another second, and the hands were withdrawn. The peril and excitement of the past hour, the strangeness and unreality of the spot, combined to kindle within her an unnatural exaltation of feeling Had she not craved this? If they met as spirits in this land of spirits was she to be afraid of Paul or shrink from him? No a thousand times no!

The face closed upon her With rapid strokes it drew near—a form emerged—it was upon the rocks With a shriek she held out her arms cold hands clasped hers—a voice (did dead men speak) cried 'Queenie, Queenie!'

The old pet name! It was Paul's ghost but none the less Paul "I know you are dead," said she "but I am not afraid of you," and felt, unterrified a strong arm enfolding her But the breast upon which her cheek rested, was throbbing with such living pulsations that half aroused she began to shudder in a terrible blended hope and fear, and she shrank away from his touch

"O, Paul, are we both dead, or only you? Is this the other world?"

"Why darling," gently seating her on the rock, "You are in a dream Wake up, love, look at me, Esther I am not a dead man, but your living Paul Feel my hand—it is warm, you see God has restored us to each other, and now, if his mercy permits, we will never be parted again"

"Paul! Paul!" cried Esther, convinced at last.

They were very happy Prosy folks could they have looked in, would have seen only two exceedingly wet young persons seated high upon a rocky ledge with receding waters rippling about their feet, but they all aglow with life and happiness, scarcely knew of the lapse of time before the shimmering line of light appeared at the mouth of the cave

With blessed tears streaming down her cheeks, Esther heard his story, how, picked up—the sole survivor of that dreadful wreck—by an India bound trader, her lover had lain delirious for many weeks in a far land, unable to tell his name and story, and, in part recovered started at once for home and landed in advance of the letters which told his safety And so they had met here, 'mid 'coral and tangle and almondine,' and as she heard the story of his perils, Esther clasped the hand she held as if she never again could let it go

The provident little Helen—bless her heart!—builded better than she knew in providing such a store of sandwiches and refreshing wine for those drenched and happy lovers. And when at last the receding tide opened again the rocky gate and the vista of the sea tinged with rosy sunset, and Esther, aided by strong arms, left her prison it was with a glow like the sunset upon her cheeks, and in her eyes such a radiance of happiness that it fairly dazzled the forlorn, bedraggled group above Mrs Gray embraced her fondly, and fell into a fit of long-deferred hysterics The boys executed a war dance of congratulation, and Helen and Isabel laughed and cried for joy And as Esther turned with Paul for a last look at the scene of her deliverance, the chime and murmur of the sea seemed full of blessings—the blessings of the dear Lord who had compassion on her weakness, restoring her to life, and to that life its lost joy, With thankful heart she went her way

OBJECTS.
This Savings Bank has been formed at the desire and under the auspices of thirty-one gentlemen citizens of Oregon and Washington Territory who have become stockholders therein along with certain other gentlemen in Scotland to supply a want hitherto much felt namely an institution where similar to those in California the working farming and other classes of Oregon and Washington Territory may from time to time deposit their various savings along with the Bank's own capital for investment in Oregon and Washington Territory (to which the Bank's operations are limited) secured from Mortgages over City Properties Farming and other Lands for the purpose thereby of assisting to develop the industries of the North Pacific coast.

The Bank's Directors and Officers in Oregon having had considerable experience in finance and real estate securities, their policy will be to guard depositors' moneys and the Stockholders' capital by loaning only on first class securities, high interest being a secondary consideration The Bank does not therefore seek to employ its funds in a commercial banking business, confining its operations strictly to those securities with which its Directors are familiarly acquainted such as real estate loans advances on bonds assignments and similar securities which are not fluctuating in value hence no loans will be made on Promissory Notes alone or Bills of Exchange and such like

Security to Depositors.
The security for repayment of Depositors' moneys is two fold
1st. Not only the mortgages assignments, bonds and other pledges on which the Bank's deposits are carefully loaned and the real estate secured there by which must be located in Oregon and Washington Territory but also
2d The Bank's own $300 000 capital specially pledged for the safety of depositors, in order that all losses (if any) shall be made therefrom thus forming a double security for depositors' moneys
No charge for entrance fee or pass books
Deposits received from $2 50 and upwards.
Rates of interest on application
Hours, from 9 A M to 3 P M
Certificate of Incorporation Constitution Articles of Association Regulations and By laws for depositors may be seen at the Bank's office
By order of Directors
WILLIAM REID
Managing Director
